Description:.

Article 4

The control over residents shall be uniformly carried out by the People's Public Security Organs.

Article 5

Any change in the members of the household should be properly reported by the head of the household concerned who should proceed to the local public security organ with his census record:

1. To move out:

All those who move out should first notify the public security organ of change of residence, cancel the census record of the old place of abode, and apply for change-of-residence permit (change of residence within the jurisdictional area of the same public security organ does not require a permit).

2. To move in:

All those who move in should report to the local public security organ to enter his name in the census record within three days of arrival.

Article 6

Visitors staying for 3 days and more, should be reported to the public security sub-station.

Article 7

Census records should be kept by all households and faithfully entered for checking. Hospitals should have census records as well as records of in-patients; arrival and departure of patients should be regularly reported.
