Other Decisions and/or Actions:

According to the general tasks of the country's transitional period, the meeting determined the specific tasks of future supervision work as follows:

1. Supervising and inspecting the implementation of various state policies and decrees during the transitional period, with particular emphasis on the implementation of socialist industrialization policies and the transformation of capitalist industry and commerce. Supervise and inspect the implementation of policies, developing cooperative economy, transforming agriculture, handicraft industry and consolidating the alliance of workers and peasants, as well as the implementation of policies such as the unified purchase and sale of grain, finance and taxation, and commerce and trade.
2. Supervise and inspect the implementation of the national construction plan, and gradually implement the operation and management of the financial enterprise sector, the production economic financial plan (including the engineering construction plan, according to the actual situation and specific conditions)), and after-the-fact supervision and inspection of capital receipts and expenditures, storage, use, and the establishment and implementation of the economic accounting system.
3. Conscientiously accept and handle reports and accusations by the people against state organs and staff for illegal and dereliction of duty, and supervise people's governments at all levels and government departments to implement the system of meeting the people and handling letters from the people.

Remarks:

the shortcomings that still exist in the work. This is mainly due to insufficient efforts in combining the work of the center, grasping the main tendencies, and concentrating efforts in a planned and organized way to conduct supervision and inspection; in the supervision and inspection of economic construction, it is also insufficient to actively understand the situation, find problems and organize inspections. , some supervisory organs have even neglected the supervision and inspection of economic construction, and are just busy handling ordinary cases; some supervisory organs have a backlog of delays and hasty handling in handling people's complaints and accusations; Summarize the experience well and determine some principles of punishment, so that some regions and departments punish lower-level cadres too heavily
